

Media are already too consolidated, limiting the voice of news Americans hear and see. To get past the corporate point of view, news consumers are forced to seek out foreign newscasts like the BBC, or foreign newspapers on the Internet. It's time the U.S. returned to a competitive media market.